RESERVE OFFICERS EXTEND BID 1933 STATE CONVENTION

HEAR MRS. L. F. HAWKINSON; FAVOR PROPORTIONATE WORLD DISARMAMENT

The Central Minnesota Reserve Officers Association will make a bid for the 1933 summer convention of the Department of Minnesota Reserve Officers Association asking that it be held in Brainerd.

Captain I. L. Peterson, Brainerd, sixth district councilman of the R. O. A., will carry the bid to the summer convention this year at Ft. Snelling. He was so directed at a meeting of the Central Minnesota Association following a dinner in Archer's Cafe Monday evening.

The convention, if secured, would bring 300 officers to Brainerd.

"World Disarmament" was the topic for discussion by Mrs. L. F. Hawkinson, Brainerd, and following a comprehensive report on activities at the Geneva conference, the officers adopt a resolution expressing favor of international disarmament.

In such action the officers expressed themselves as favoring proportionate arms limitation for each country but were not in favor of national disarmament alone.

Mrs. Hawkinson discussed various phases of disarmament including men, budgetary and tonnage.

Lt. Bert Eliertson, chairman of the C. M. T. C. committee, reported on activities, announcing that 17 boys are preparing to attend C. M. T. C. at Ft. Snelling this summer from here.

A letter was read from headquarters 88th division U. S. Army in which permission was granted Captain R. G. Cousley, infantry, detached officers list, to come to Brainerd in the near future to make a survey for a group and troop school.

A letter was read from Major General Johnson Hagood, commanding general 7th corps area, Omaha, Neb. in which he recognized the good work and activities of the Central Minnesota unit.

Skelgas Contest Letters Must be Mailed Saturday

The $12,500 Skelgas Contest closes Saturday of this week—April 16. Contest letters must be mailed—and postmarked—by midnight Saturday at the post office here.

"Judging from the interest shown in Brainerd and vicinity as evidenced by many inquiries, I believe this is the most talked about contest in a long time," says J. C. Clausen, Skelgas dealer here.

"We want to impress upon those who have not entered this Skelgas contest the necessity for getting into action and writing their letters since all letters must be mailed by Saturday at midnight.

"What seems to appeal to a lot of those who are interested, is that they can spend fifteen or thirty minutes writing a letter which may bring that wonderful first prize. That's a mighty small amount of effort to put forth for such a beautiful stove, hot water heater, 25 cylinders of Skelgas and complete installation of everything, without a penny's cost. Besides, there are 64 other complete stoves, installations, and gas prizes among the 300 prizes which are to be given away."

A CHANGE IN TAX PRINCIPLES—

The Senate's deliberations over the tax bill have raised anew the old, fundamental issue in any taxation measure: are those who have the most to pay the most, or is it better to let them off lightly on the theory that their increased prosperity will trickle way down and do something for the ordinary citizens underneath?

For more than a decade the country has been committed to the second alternative.

Through recent years we have been assured, over and over again, that the welfare of all of us is best promoted by seeing to it that the very rich have a free hand.

Taxes on the possessors of great incomes have been whittled down, year after year, in line with this theory. The government has done all it could to leave them entirely alone, both in the conduct of their business enterprises and in their methods of handling the profits.

This, we were told, meant better times for all of us, automatically and inevitably.

As long as boom times lasted, nobody minded much. The rich got theirs and most of the rest of us got ours, proportionately, and everybody was happy.

The question up for decision now is whether that doctrine is still a valid one.

A very large section of the country, evidently, thinks that it isn't. Its belief found reflection in the crushing defeat which the House gave the sales tax proposal, and in the "soak the rich" provisions of the new revenue bill. Most Americans seem about ready to reverse the post-war system and call on the rich to carry a greater part of the load.

It may be that the ordinary citizen has decided that the proof of a pudding is in the eating of it, and that since ten solid years of coddling the rich have finally landed us just where we are now, a change in policy is advisable. And if he has—can you blame him very much?

A MAN "STARK MAD"—

The case of the Illinois convict who set fire to the prison chapel because he was "tired of being shut up" and "wanted to see the whole place burn up" is a tragic example of what long-continued imprisonment can do to a human soul.

This man has been in prison for 35 years. Prison officials describe him as "stark mad"—which seems rather obvious since there was not the slightest chance that his act of incendiarism could have benefited him in any way.

That, apparently, is what happens to a man who is locked up for a lifetime. It gives one a dark, tragic picture of what goes on in the minds and hearts of men whom society has had to keep under lock and key.

MODIFYING THE BAUMES LAWS—

New York's state's action in modifying the famous Baumes laws relating to habitual criminals seems to mark the beginning of a return to sanity on the part of legislators in connection with the problem of crime and punishment.

The original Baumes law provided for a life sentence for fourth offenders. The idea back of it—that a man who had been convicted of a felony four times had become such a hardened criminal that society ought to lock him up for keeps, without bothering about trying to reform him—had a certain amount of logic in it, but in practice the law worked out very badly.

Juries hesitated to convict when the habitual criminal provision was involved. Woeful cases of savage injustice came to light every so often. It became clear that the law was doing more harm than good.

Now New York's fourth offenders will be eligible to parole at the end of 15 years. The law is still severe, but its severity is tempered both with a degree of mercy and with common sense.

FACTS ON HONOLULU—

Just to keep the record straight, all Americans should read the report issued by Assistant Attorney General Seth Richardson on police and crime conditions in Honolulu.

When the "honor murder" case there first broke, we were told that Honolulu was over-run with potential rapists and that sex crimes were frightfully common there. Mr. Richardson was appointed to look into things.

Now he says that he found no criminal rackets in Hawaii at all, and that sex crimes there are actually less frequent than in most large cities on the mainland. He does blister the Honolulu police administration for its political activity and inefficiency—but are there half a dozen large cities in the continental United States whose police departments could not be criticized in exactly the same way?

In other words, it is clear that Honolulu has been basely maligned. It is important that the public at large realize the fact.

THE OPEN FORUM

Editor of the Daily Dispatch:

I read an article in your paper March 28. It was headlined, "Our Woods and Waters." I agree with the writer in his first statement that lowering the lakes destroys much spawn. On top of this, the incessant angling and spearing and netting the rest of this article sounded like a story writer had written it.

I wonder how the writer classifies sport. I don't suppose he would slide down hill because he would have to pull his sled up the hill again. I wonder if the writer ever went out on a duck pass and put out his decoys; built himself a good blind, and then shot the poor ducks as they came in. I wonder if he ever laid down on his stomach and crawled a hundred yards to get a shot into a bunch of geese?

Well, I suppose we should take a large white flag and a tin horn when we go duck hunting, hoist the flag and, don't forget to toot the horn and then if a duck should come near, shoot it sportsman. The writer of the above mentioned article seems to me as a good sportsman, one of those fishermen that like a hammock in the shade of a tree with a book to read. We know the fish are plentiful as they used to be and we all know the cause. What is the use of trying to sidestep.

We know there are thousands of every kind of alluring bait in our lakes. Through the summer fishing season we know a great amount of fish caught during this time. We should call this sportsmanship.

Why should the unknown writer object taking a few fish in the winter. Every fish taken this way is used for food. The writer says fish taken in the winter will not spawn in the spring. Very true. We also know every female fish taken in the summer will not spawn the next spring. The writer spoke of the farmer killing 75 per cent of his brood stock, and the results. Well, if he waited until after the foaling time and then let some one else do the killing I think the results would be bad. Some people who know nothing about fish house spearing think the fish all come in and lay still while they are speared. Well, it is easy to tell how many you see but how many did you get?

I think it is good sport and I hope all those that like it will use their influence to keep fish house spearing open, a couple months in winter.

I believe, if the game and fish commission would use the right method of starting young fish, it would be a success. My plan for one is to use small lakes for breeding lakes and net the small fish to plant in other lakes. Some of the quite small lakes are natural homes for bass and crappies and don't let the fish be slaughtered so in summer.

Staples—Antiques will feature the program and party given by the Women's Missionary Societies at the Methodist church Friday evening, April 18. The attics of the various homes at Staples are being ransacked for antique costumes, and clothes worn in another day, days often forgotten. An old fashioned spinning wheel will be on display, and it is hoped that some one can be secured to do actual spinning during the evening, and thus show the method of making yarn and weaving cloth.

Child Genius Abandons Dolls For Ibsen, Schopenhauer

Ava Louise DuBard, 11, shown above, is the brightest genius discovered by the psychology department of Southwestern University, Memphis, Tenn., in a study of 1200 children covering a period of five years. Her intelligence quotient—or IQ rating, as the psychologist expresses it—is 181, which makes her mental age 19. An IQ genius was discovered in the 1000. Ava Louise will enter junior high school next September. She makes A grades in all her subjects except art. No effort has been made to push her in her school work, as her parents want her to develop a well-balanced life. She enjoys playing with children her physical age as well as with those her mental age. She reads a lot, mostly classic authors, likes movies—and has a boy friend.

Load Shotguns With Salt, Wait for Prowlers of Chicken Coops at Midnight

Staples—Some of these young fellows from the roosts of the individual lows that prefer chicken taken owners, without their consent, rather than those purchased from the regular dealers for their midnight feeds are liable to spend time picking salt off their anatomy if they visit certain chicken coops in Staples. It is reported that a number of owners, incensed at the frequency of the midnight visits, have loaded their guns with salt and are ready for the visitors.

It is not thought that these depredations are being made by people who are really hungry, but from the way they are being taken, and certain things about the number taken etc., it is thought that it is either a group of people going out for what they call a good time, or some groups of people who are helping themselves as they pass through town.

Whoever it is, those who have lost and those who do not know what morning they may go out to their coops and find the whole number of their flock gone, are getting sick and tired of the present uncertainty, and have adopted the policy of watchful waiting.

The dime-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CLAYTON

CHAPTER XLVIII

ELLEN had not returned to Dreamland but she intended to go that evening. The thought of the gaudy, noisy place was distasteful to her but she felt a desperate necessity to try to take up the life she had dropped. Dancing—any sort of occupation—would help her forget maddening memories. She must go on with living. So she planned to go to Dreamland.

There was no chance of seeing Larry there. She knew he would obey her request. Oh, why couldn't she decide that her own past was as much her own as was his past? It was the indecision in her mind that was driving her to desperation.

Late that afternoon she dressed to go to the dance hall. Myra was at the library and Molly was lying down. Suddenly the doorbell shrilled.

Ellen glanced at the clock and sighed. She looked into Molly's bedroom and saw that her mother was asleep. There was no escape so she answered the bell.

She had removed her gloves but left on her hat. She opened the door and looked down the dark cavern of the stairs. Suddenly her heart plunged. Coming up the stairway, trailing perfume and wrapped in silks and furs, was Mrs. Harrowgate.

She kissed Ellen on the cheek in plaintive greeting. Then, sure of her welcome, she stepped into the living room.

"I'll go call mother," Ellen said. "Don't bother, my dear. It's you I came to see."

"But I—I have to leave in a moment or so," Ellen stammered. "Not just now, I'm sure. Sit down, my dear."

Ellen sat down. "Now what is this nonsense between you and Larry?" Mrs. Harrowgate began easily. "You should know that you're breaking the poor child's heart."

"Did he send you here?"

Without reading it or even glancing at the address, Ellen laid the message in her lap.

"Do you mind my saying that I consider this whole thing ridiculous?" Mrs. Harrowgate said fretfully. "If Larry had done anything to hurt your feelings—but I'm sure he hasn't—perhaps your conduct would not be so extraordinary. As it is, merely to make him suffer for some whim of yours, is childish and absurd. It's cruel!"

She seemed for the moment to lack further adjectives. Mrs. Harrowgate paused for breath, and still Ellen did not speak.

"Larry could have helped you during these difficult days," Mrs. Harrowgate continued. "He could have stood by you when you had to face the police and reporters. You should have let him do that. If you hadn't come to my home that afternoon Fergus would never have dreamed of applying to you for help. And then the whole thing wouldn't have happened. Larry feels deeply responsible. That's what makes—"

"Stop, stop!" Ellen broke in.

"Put on your coat," Mrs. Harrowgate said firmly. "Larry's at home now and he's wretchedly unhappy. I'm going to take you to him. You can patch up this quarrel or situation or whatever it is together. I'm sure it's too much for me!"

"Hurry, child," she added. "I'm sorry, but I can't come." Ellen told her.

Nothing Mrs. Harrowgate said could persuade her. The older woman threatened, pleaded, even wept. Always she was defeated by Ellen's refusals. There was no triumph in Ellen's heart at the complete surrender of Larry's mother. There was nothing in her heart except a burning agony.

LONG after Mrs. Harrowgate had gone, the girl sat in the darkened living room. At last she read Larry's message.

"I'll wait for you, my darling, as long as you want me to wait. Nothing in your past, nothing in your future, can affect what I feel for you. Whenever you want to come to me I will be waiting in the studio. You can see the light from the street."

That night before she went to Dreamland Ellen walked past the studio. There was a light there. Larry was waiting as he had promised. Ellen stood for a long time in the cold, quiet twilight. She felt again the sharp and burning pain in her heart. The yellow light at the window burned on steadily.

The girl turned in at the apartment house and walked through the lobby and up the stairs. She could not stop for an elevator. The door of the studio was ajar. She went inside. And as she entered, Larry stepped through the door from the adjoining rooms that were to have been their home. For an instant he paused—then caught her savagely into his arms and kissed her again and again.

Feverishly she pushed his hands away and walked to the window to stare down at the roofs and at the men and women and children strolling in the tiny, dusky park. The children were screaming and running briskly, all of them buttoned into leather leggings and little woolen coats.

Ellen turned suddenly and returned to the divan where Larry waited in puzzled silence.

"Larry," she said, "there's something I must tell you—something that's been killing me, Larry," she stammered, "it was Fergus who wrote those unsigned letters to you and he told the truth—at least a part of the truth. There was a girl at the house with your uncle when he died. I was that girl. I thought I was married to him—and afterwards the whole thing was such a terrible mess! I ran away rather than face it."

Tears came in torrents. Ellen sank to the divan but she pushed away Larry's hand and steadily told him the whole story. She tried to make him see her fear and indecision, her frantic desire to keep his love at all costs.

"You'll never forgive me, I know you can't!"

"I cheated and lied and my only excuse is that I loved you too much to risk your hearing anything that might make you love me less."

She was crying bitterly. Her voice was hoarse and strained with emotion.

"Now I'm paying for all my lies! I'll have to give you up, to let you go. And my heart is breaking!"

HER hair was disordered, had showered from its pins. Her face was pale and drawn with pain. The ache in her heart seemed to fill the world. Larry leaned forward and gathered her shaking body into his arms.

"You might let me speak, Larry," he said. "My poor, little, sweet heart! I've known all this for days, for weeks—" "You've known it all?" she whispered, uttering incomprehension written on her face. "Was it Fergus who told you?"

"You yourself told me."

"I?"

"I mean you tried to tell me at first. After I learned what must have happened I could realize the thousand opportunities you'd tried to make and that like a blind fool I'd closed them to you. You're not a very successful falsifier, sweetheart."

"I tried so hard—I did try and then I just stopped trying! I was afraid, Larry."

He held her closer. "Do you remember that day I went out to Long Island?" he asked after a while.

She nodded, tightening her fingers about his hand.

"That was the day I learned," he went on. "I was going through Uncle Steven's papers and one of the first things I ran across was his passport, made out for him and for his wife. Your picture was on that passport."

"Oh, darling—to learn that way!" "At first it was pretty bad," he admitted slowly, honestly. "Then I got to thinking and I saw how you'd tried to explain to me. I was jealous, too, jealous and hurt and puzzled. But I saw I had no reason to be. Whatever you had once thought you felt for Uncle Steven I knew you really belonged to me and knew you had been intended for me all along."

"That's true, Larry. That's the truest thing that's ever been said," Ellen interrupted passionately.

"I've suffered all that you've suffered—at least I think I have," he said. "I knew, Ellen, that some time before we were married, you'd tell me everything. I don't know how but I just knew it."

"I'll never deserve your goodness," Ellen said hoarsely. "I don't care what happens now. I'm almost glad everything happened just as it did so long as I know you've forgiven me."

"Don't talk of forgiveness," the man said. "There can never be any such thing between us."

She did not answer in words. But she resolved never again to test his loyalty or his trust in her. She would take them for granted as one of the most beautiful things of life. "Kiss me, Ellen," Larry said. She raised her lips.

"The Tailor Made Man," a play written by Leonard Smith, will be presented to the public next Friday and Saturday nights by a double cast as a benefit performance to further the vocational guidance program of the school. Unusual efforts have been put forth by the members of the double cast which has drawn its members from among the cast of the Junior and Senior class plays.

The play is set in a thriving big city. The hero is only a tailor's helper but through the influence of a book written by a doctor who is the fiancé of his employer's daughter, he becomes a prominent and accomplished business man. The amusing predicaments that he finds himself in his climb to fame in connection with a very charming love plot and his subsequent fall makes one of the most attractive and delightful plays of the year. No person can afford to miss this hilarious comedy and see our hero regain his former prominent position.

SKOOL SKANDEL

The affair between Linda Zawadski and Ralph Sherlund has been so obvious that it has almost escaped our notice.

Roger Nelson is taking the 30-day loveless test.

Barbara Zapffe left the Brainerd banquet early because duty called her. We haven't been able to find out what his name is, however.

It seems that history repeats itself and we wonder if Margaret Nolan and Robert Patterson are following in the footsteps of Alice and Stuart.

Why does Robert Ebert visit in Minneapolis so often? What's the attraction, Bob?

JUNIOR GIRLS WIN INTER-CLASS TOURNEY CROWN

SENIORS WIN CONSOLATION TITLE FROM FRESH- MEN

An intensely interesting game ended the girls' basketball tournament last Wednesday.

In spite of the strong opposition offered by the Sophomores the Juniors came through to the finish with flying colors.

The score at the end of the first quarter was 5-2 in favor of the Juniors.

In the second quarter the Sophs dropped behind and the Juniors remained well in the lead for the rest of the game. The game ended with a score of 24-8. Shubert and Bocoy having made the most scores for their teams. The lineup was as follows:

Juniors—Shubert, Erickson, forwards; Tweed, Tool, guards; Patterson, Miller, centers.

Sophomores—Rasch, Bosely, forwards; Casey, Paine, centers; Gabbard, Zander, guards.

Substitutions for the Juniors were: Elder as guard. Sophomores: Cabou as forward, Johannson and Zander as guards, Gudmundson as center.

Throughout the whole game there were only two personal fouls which indicates that the girls have been carefully coached to avoid careless play.

The Seniors won the consolation game with the Freshmen with a score of 18-6.

SOPHS' COSTUME PARTY HELD FRIDAY NIGHT

THE HOSTESS AND ALICE DE ROSIER WIN COS- TUME PRIZES

A very successful Sophomore party was held on Friday night in the gym and cafeteria. Games held were murder, wink 'em, and dump the fruit basket.

Many interesting costumes were worn. The ones winning the prizes were worn by Jennie Hoston and Alice DeRosier. These girls were rewarded with boxes of candy.

Other costumes were many gypsy costumes, sailors, colonial and foreign countries' dress.

The lunch served by the refreshment committee consisted of ice cream sundaes and wafers and cake. The party broke up with everybody exclaiming what a fine time they had enjoyed.

JUNIOR HI-Y FORMED by Mr. Peterson of Y

A Junior HI-Y has been organized during the past month. About 20 boys have responded to the call and the purpose of the club is to provide the boys for the HI-Y next year. There has been a model meeting and talks have been given by Mr. Peterson and present members of the HI-Y. All boys who wish to join should see Mr. Peterson at the Y.

Brainerd High School teacher.

The performance will begin each evening at 8 sharp. Tickets may be purchased from Miss Oerting and all members of the cast for the benefit of Vocational Guidance.

Prizes of 25c for adults and 10c for children will be given.

EXCHANGE

Students of Central High School, La Crosse, Wis., will present as their senior class play "The Lion and the Mouse."

The Augsburg Choral Society and its director, Prof. H. P. Opsch, will leave on its annual concert tour April 3. This year the tour will be made in two trips, the first trip including Chicago and surrounding territory, the second trip including northern Minnesota and Ashland, Wis.

Camp Fire Groups to Have Spring Frolic

The Camp Fire groups of Brainerd are having their "Spring Frolic" in the High School auditorium Friday evening, May 6, at 8 p. m. Miss Hartsburg's dancing classes, assisted by Miss Johnstone, are giving their annual recitals as a part of the evening entertainment.

Tickets for this frolic may be bought from any Camp Fire Girl for the small price of 25c. Every high school student should try to attend this entertainment. It was a huge success last year and it is expected to be even better this year.

This recital is being sponsored by the Camp Fire organization. The profits will be used for a summer camp.

STAFF MEMBERS HAVE SUCCESSFUL ANNUAL BANQUET

MR. JAEGER, EDITOR OF DIS- PATCH, GAVE JOURNAL- ISTIC ADDRESS

Twenty-eight members of the Weekly and Annual Brainerd staff together with their advisors, Miss Tornstrom and Mr. Penrose, gathered in the Model apartments, where a delightful banquet was served by the refreshment committee to them, and to their guests, Mr. Jaeger and Mrs. Penrose. The tables were decorated in green and white with green flower pots in the center.

Robert Ebert, editor of the weekly, acted as toastmaster. Popular songs were sung between courses of the banquet which consisted of chicken and noodles, baked sweet potatoes, fruit salad, olives, parker house rolls, pie a la mode, and coffee.

Miss Tornstrom read some jokes, but saved one about the Freshie and Harold, for Bob to introduce the editor of the Annual with, who in turn, highly praised the school Weekly, and turned the sale of the Annuals. Mr. Penrose expressed his appreciation of working with the writers.

Mr. Jaeger, of the Dispatch, was principal speaker of the evening. In his talk he brought out the importance of the school paper as the backbone of student activities. Newspapering should consist of two things, news and advertising. A news article must answer the questions how, when, where, who, which, and why. He also stated that we should write more features and an invitation was extended to view the new Dispatch press.

Following the program a treasure hunt started in the cafeteria and ended in the extreme end of the wind tunnel, where everyone found a white elephant. Then the staff journeyed back to the cafeteria where Detective Snoop (Marion Newman) found Allen Paine guilty of murder. Spoof, Fruit Basket, Double Solitary, and I Doubt It were played. The Brainerdian broke up the party at 11 o'clock.

ALUMNI

Carl Zapffe, '29, College of Mines and Metallurgy at the U. of Minnesota made the Varsity Gym team and also won his Varsity "M." He won his points against Iowa and Michigan. This is only the second time a student of the Mines College won a Varsity letter.

COLORED CONSERVATION SLIDES SHOWN BY FORESTER ALBERT NELSON

YE EDITOR

"Have you bought your 1932 Annual? If not, why not?" That is the sales cry of the Brainerdian Annual staff and the members of the Brainerdian Annual staff as they entered the second week of their subscription campaign.

The present sales campaign has been highly successful but over one hundred more year books must be sold during the next week so the staff may continue their huge undertaking without further financial worry.

The '32 Annual is yours. It is your duty to help support and make this year's Brainerdian the biggest and best in the history of the Brainerd High School.

Ye Editor.

STUDIED MUSIC UNDER MRS. W. A. M. JOHNSTONE

Alice Regina Johnson presented another of her delightful piano recitals last Sunday afternoon at the high school auditorium under auspices of the Brainerd Musical Club.

Miss Johnson, who is a graduate of the class of '23, studied with Mrs. W. A. M. Johnstone here in Brainerd and owes her training in the fundamentals of piano recital and musical theory to her. There she was awarded the Bachelor of Music degree and was chosen twice by public contest to represent the school as piano soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. In 1928 she was awarded a scholarship by competitive examination by the Juillard Foundation in New York City.

Miss Johnson was advised to pursue a musical career at an early age by Josef Lhevinne following an audition with him at which he recognized in her unusual talent. Later she was taken as a pupil by Carl von Sauer in Vienna and Rudolph Ganz in Chicago.

'FAREWELL CRUEL WORLD' PRESENTED BY MISSES FARRANKOP AND WALKUP EVELYN, WINFRED LOOM ON PROGRAM

Miss Farrankop and Miss Walkup presented an excellent program on Friday morning in the auditorium. All of the students were sorry it couldn't have been about two hours long but they will have to learn or be taught that "Brevity is the Soul of Wit."

Miss Evelyn Loom, a graduate of Brainerd high school offered the first number which was a piano solo. After receiving a hearty applause she favored the audience with an encore.

"Farewell Cruel World," was the title of the humorous playlet which shows that it's hard to take the bitter without the sweet. Mary Louise Skoog and Delrose Rieke, portrayed the parts of would be suicide.

It all happened over a love affair. Oh! girls will be girls. Just when they look the angels in the room for the slaughter, along comes the dashing and welcome hero, Ruten Barlett, who doesn't really mean to intrude but...

Cyril DeRosier performed as master of ceremonies.

OUTLINES ENTIRE WORK OF THE STATE FORESTRY DEPARTMENT

Tuesday of last week the students assembled to hear Mr. Albert Nelson of the state forestry department explain the use and preservation of the forests of Minnesota. His talk was based on the colored slides that are put out by the forestry department, and also upon the four uses of the woodland for wood purposes, game reserves, water supplies, and recreation.

He stated that wood was the first known use of the forests. Everything one uses is of wood or has met with wood in the making. Forests were taken for all purposes by the forefathers, but only the large trees were taken because their machinery could not take small trees. Now the small portable lumber camps take any size log, and new uses are being found for the small trees, for example there are 100 uses for poplar. Part of the wood supply came from Minnesota, the Dakotas, and northern Wisconsin to build up the middle west. Over seventy-five billion board feet were taken during logging times.

The forest is used as a home for all game. One of the familiar signs is the one of the buffalo, saying that people should not treat the forests as the buffalo were treated. Land that has been burned never makes a home for the wild animals, for animals need protection and food. Green land also holds water and coolness for them. Many animals have died in fires because of the loss of the things mentioned before.

Much of the draught in the past few years has been due to cutting and burning of forests. It is evident to everyone what effect the lack of water has on the entire country.

If the forests are destroyed vacationists will not longer come to the lake land for their recreation. They enjoy the colorful scenery around our lakes and the fish found in the lakes are a joy to the angler sportsman. So if we wish to keep the recreationists' money in our country we must "prevent forest fires."

Mr. Nelson also explained the work of the foresters, the finding of the location of the fire, the apparatus used, and the way to fight the fire. With the modern apparatus fires are put out in little time. He also described Itasca State Park, which everyone who hasn't visited it should surely enjoy. In and on the way there it would be something unusual to stop at state "small" tree nursery eight miles north of Backus on the cut-off road to Akeley.

Richard Ebert, '30 has accepted a position as Columnist on the St. Cloud Teachers' College bi-weekly paper.

WRESTLERS HURL REF FROM RING

Kansas City, Mo.—Everett Marshall, La Junta, Colo., and John Perot, Nebraska farmer must meet again to decide which one is going to join the army of world's heavyweight wrestling champions.

The two wrestled here Monday night but the match was declared "no contest" when, after winning a fall apiece, they hurled Referee Walter Bates out of the ring and he was unable to continue.

The winner was to have been awarded recognition by the Midwest Athletic association as world's champion. Jim London, Ed (Strangler) Lewis and Henry Deglane all have associations backing their championship claims and Promoter Dave Kaufman said he wanted the Midwest to have its due.

Perot won the first fall with what he called the "alligator hold" in 21 minutes and five seconds. Marshall came right back with his own personal "airplane spin" to take the second in 12 minutes flat.
